From exciting jungle safaris to peaceful riverside stays, the region provides a refreshing escape from busy city life.

About Jim Corbett National Park

Established in 1936 as Hailey National Park, Jim Corbett National Park is recognised as India's first national park. It was later renamed in honour of Jim Corbett, the British-Indian naturalist and conservationist known for his work related to wildlife and the region's forests.

The park forms part of the larger Corbett Tiger Reserve and covers a diverse landscape of forests, grasslands, hills, and river systems. Its varied habitats support a remarkable range of wildlife, making it an important destination for conservation and responsible nature tourism.

Ramnagar serves as a major gateway to several tourism zones of the reserve. Its railway station, road connections, accommodation options, and local tourism services make it a convenient starting point for visitors planning a Corbett holiday.

Why Visit Jim Corbett National Park Ramnagar?

One of the biggest reasons to visit Jim Corbett is the opportunity to experience wildlife in its natural environment. Guided safaris take visitors through designated tourism zones, where they can observe the forest landscape and look for animals in their natural habitats.

The experience is not limited to tiger sightings. The region is home to elephants, spotted deer, sambar deer, crocodiles, and a wide variety of resident and migratory birds.

The surrounding area also offers scenic views, local temples, nature-based activities, and comfortable resorts. Whether you are planning a short weekend trip or a longer holiday, Ramnagar provides several ways to enjoy the destination.

Jeep Safari

A jeep safari offers an opportunity to explore the forest in a smaller vehicle with a permitted driver and guide arrangement. It is a popular choice for families, couples, photographers, and small groups.

During the journey, visitors may encounter deer, elephants, birds, and other wildlife. Tiger sightings are possible but never guaranteed, as animals move freely through their natural habitat.

Canter Safari

Canter safaris operate in designated areas and offer a shared wildlife experience for larger groups. They are particularly associated with organised visits to the Dhikala tourism area, subject to current operating rules.

Before choosing a safari, confirm the permitted zone, entry gate, available time slot, and vehicle arrangements through the official booking system.
